

Kevin McGrew

Conflict of Interest Disclosure Statement (5-15-2010)

I, Kevin McGrew, am an active scholar who regularly publishes articles, book chapters and books. I also speak regularly at state, national and international conferences. I also serve as the blogmaster for three professional blogs. As per the nature of scholarship and writing, one's research and writing often overlap with any commercial or financial interests in the same fields. Thus, in an attempt to be transparent, below are the potential conflicts of interest I feel ethically compelled to disclose at this time. Detailed information regarding my CV and bio can be found at the following links:

- I am a coauthor of the Woodcock-Johnson III Battery (WJ III) and thus have a financial (royalty) interest in the psychological battery.
- I am the Director and primary owner of the Institute for Applied Psychometrics llc (IAP).
- I work part time for the Woodcock-Muñoz-Foundation (WMF; Research Director) and Measurement Learning Consultants (WMF; Associate Director) and am also a Visiting Professor in Educational Psychology (School Psychology Program) at the University of Minnesota.
- All my blog writing is done in my role as the Director of the Institute of Applied Psychometrics (<http://www.iapsych.com>).
- IAP is the mechanism via which I do all my work related to the WJ III and any future related products.
- Unless otherwise specified, all my professional writing , research and consultation reflect my opinions and not necessarily those of: (a) the coauthors of the WJ III, (b) Riverside Publishing (publisher of the WJ III), (c) WMF, (d) MLC, (e) or the University of Minnesota.
- I am on the Scientific Advisory Board for a neurotechnology company (Interactive Metronome) the produces commercial neurotechnology products and services. I may receive consulting fees for special projects completed upon request of IM.
- I am a member of the American Association of Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities (AAIDD) ad hoc Death Penalty Task Force. Any writing or statements I make do not represent the position of this task force—they reflect my opinions.
- Any expert consultation I provide regarding Atkins MR/ID death penalty cases are done via my role as Director of IAP.
